That many are in this state is highly probable from all that has transpired. After making some general remarks respecting his efforts to distribute books, etc., and to promote temperance, Mr. Schneider concludes as follows. It will be perceived from the foregoing statements that in all the places visited by us we found more or less that was interesting. The commencement of what, in its natural tendency, will finally result, with the divine blessing, in the revival of pure religion, seems to be apparent Though the indications of this are very faint in some cases, yet they exist Some of the people are evidently reflecting on the errors of their church, and are acquiring an increasing willingness to renounce them. Though little appears on the surface, it is plain that an under current in favor of the gospel has been set...
